

Student representative's talk - Interdisciplinary Research and Internationalization: the new norms for doctoral research excellence

Friday, June 7, 2024 9:00 AM (20 minutes)

In today's academic landscape, achieving excellence in doctoral research requires embracing two key trends: interdisciplinary approaches and international collaboration. These emerging norms are transforming how we overcome complex challenges, combining insights from diverse fields of science and technology while fostering multi- and inter-national partnerships. In this talk, we'll explore how these elements are redefining the standards of doctoral research to enhance the quality and impact of scholar work across emerging doctoral programs and their effects on research outcomes.
